

USCodex

From: Mike Williamson
[/S=oneness#064#gator.net/O=INTER2P348+USDA/AJUNTMAILB2-US/@hq.usda.gov]
Sent: Sunday, April 18, 1999 8:47 PM
To: USCodex@dchqexs1.hqnet.usda.gov
Subject: Product Labeling
Sensitivity: Personal

I am writing you this email regarding the labeling of genetically altered food products. As has been evidenced by Monsanto's own scientists, genetically altering foods such as milk can produce a new product different from the original (the Freak amino acid that their own scientists admitted was there). What are the long term effects of consuming this new "milk" No one knows. Do consumers have a right to know what they are eating or drinking? It would be immoral, unethical, and criminal to believe otherwise. Please, sir, stop being driven by highly funded lobbyists and start doing the right thing...not because it pays, but simply because it is the right thing. Product labels need to show that foods have been altered.

Thank you for your time.

Mike Williamson

92N-0139

C 5472